

Name: <XXX> from GTDC
Email: gtdctourism@gmail.com
Message: Hello!

My name is <XXX>. I am writing on behalf of Goa Tourism Development Corporation, SLPMU.

We love your work and would be interested to feature some of your pictures on the official social media handles of Goa Tourism:
- Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/officialgoatourism>
- Instagram: <https://www.instagram.com/goatourism/?hl=en>
- Twitter: <https://twitter.com/TourismGoa>

Particularly, we would like to publish early next week the picture of Ganpati Bappa, from the temple in Khandola.

Would you allow us to use it? We would give you full credit, on the picture and on the content of the post. We would also provide a brief summary of the information provided in your blog (with a link to the article). If you agree, we would also add the logo of Goa Tourism and the tagline "Let's Goa!".

Our intent is to promote the beauty of Goan culture and put the spotlight on lesser known aspects of the state!

Let us know.

Kind regards,
<XXX>, GTDC (Consultant)

*****

Dear Sir,

Thank you for your quick feedback.

Our initiative is meant to give publicity to (mostly amateur) Goan

photographers and videographers, through tagging on our social media posts. If this non-commercial approach does not suit you, we understand your stand.

We will get in touch with you if GTDC requires visual content on a license-basis.

Kind regards,
XXX, GTDC SLPMU.

On Sun, Aug 16, 2020 at 2:30 AM Rajan P. Parrikar wrote:

Dear XXX-bab,

Thank you for your inquiry.

I would gladly license my images to Goa govt. Let me know how many images you need and I can then provide a quote.

Surely the government which otherwise spends lakhs and crores of rupees on various things can afford to license images from a Niz Goenkar photographer like me who has spent almost 15 years photographing Goa extensively.

Best regards,

r